

Recently I have taken some time to think of those things that I am thankful for at Fox Hollow Elementary. Below I have listed a few of the thoughts I have had.

I am thankful for the children who come here everyday. They come to school with such hope and promise. Their minds are eager to learn. They want to read and explore. I feel we have the greatest students. They love to learn. They are excited to find new knowledge.

I am thankful for the faculty and staff at Fox Hollow who work hard to make this a great school. The preparations include, but are not limited, to teaching and nourishing growing young minds, registering your children, keeping the building clean, safe, and warm, and cooking to feed growing young bodies.

I am thankful for parents who come to this school and volunteer on a regular basis. They provide extra help for the students, work on fundraisers, committees that write our school improvement plan, and guide our Trust Lands Grants. Our parents are an invaluable asset to our school.

I am thankful for the building in which our students study. We are fortunate to have a District that has provided a beautiful building for teachers to teach and students to learn. There is ample space for the kids to run, to eat, and to learn in both the inside and outside of the building.

I am thankful for this country in which we live. The students who walk our halls and sit in our classrooms have the ability to become anything they want. Through hard work and effort they will achieve greatness.

The students, the parents and the faculty of Fox Hollow make Fox Hollow a great place to come to on a regular basis. For this I am Grateful.
