Topic: Academic Support

Dana Wilson, the presenter for this evening, is a special education teacher leader with over 20 years of experience. As a special education teacher, she addressed the academic, functional and behavioral needs of students with mild/moderate to severe disabilities. Her current responsibility as the Life Skills teacher leader is to support elementary small-group life skills teachers and their students. She loves the challenges and rewards of working in the field of special education.

Dana will be presenting on accommodations and modifications that parents can use to support their children's homework efforts. Her insights can empower parents with ideas to help their children find greater academic success.
