

What Makes Sego Lily Great?

“We have volunteers that are both PTA and non-PTA members. They spend hundreds of hours each month listening to children read...parents, aunts, uncles, and neighbors come through the doors of Sego Lily to influence our children for good.”

Collaboration

To Increase Student Learning and to Promote Effective Teaching Practices

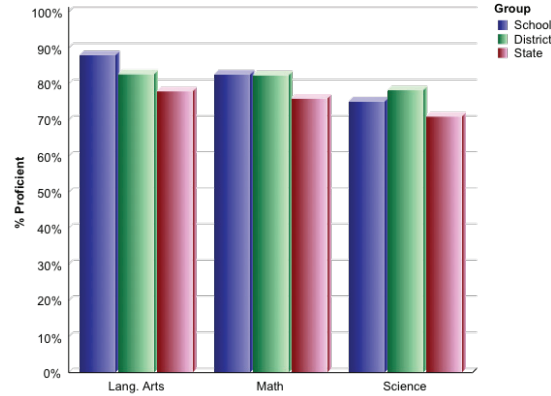

Sego Lily teachers collaborate weekly to increase accountability and to improve student learning. Teachers examine data to drive their instructional practices and problem solve for at-risk learners. Likewise, teachers identify students who understand concepts and need enriched learning opportunities to take learning to new heights.

In addition, in an effort to integrate technology, Sego Lily engages in collaboration with other schools and districts to investigate ways to more productively integrate iPad technology into our education practices.

Common assessments, common curriculum, and common intense focus ensure no students are left behind. We believe all students can learn at high levels.

HIGH ACADEMIC STANDARDS

2011 CRT Comparison to District and State

Criterion-referenced end of level tests (CRT) are administered at the end of the year in math, science, and language arts. These tests provide a check on student attainment of core curriculum content and provide the basis for improving programs by documenting program strengths and weaknesses.

“We have some of the MOST involved and concerned parents. They are very willing to donate time, materials and money to support their children’s education. From serving meals to weary teachers, to helping our children with reading and math, our parents volunteer numerous hours. They highly value education and teachers and it shows in their concern and willingness to help wherever they can.”

Each month, students are taught a valuable character trait that will help them realize their best self and create the perfect learning environment at school. Daily announcements, student movies in the school lobby, assemblies, and encouragement from teachers reinforce and help remind students to practice the character counts trait for each month. "We desire all our students to feel safe and loved, and our Character Counts program does just that." Mrs. Johnson

Educating the "Whole Child"

"CARING ABOUT OTHERS IS ALWAYS IN STYLE"

Sego Lily Understands the value in teaching children about the ABC's and 1,2,3, however, we take our job seriously when teaching children how to care for each other.

TECHNOLOGY OPPORTUNITIES

Sego Lily is in the forefront of technology use in the classrooms. With SMARTboards in almost every classroom, two mobile iPad labs, and school computer lab, students are actively learning through engaging content-rich simulations and other learning activities. When the venue for learning is technology, students take an active role rather than a passive roll in manipulating and generating information to increase their understanding of new knowledge.

- November: Be A Problem Solver
- December: Be A Friend
- January: Be Proactive
- February: Be Tolerant
- March: Be Positive

"The Character Counts Program has been wonderful for the children in our family. It has helped my two boys think about what kind of people they want to be and has also been very helpful for them to learn the tools to make friends and to be a better friend. It also makes them feel more safe at school. Thank you so much."
